

A hand is shown interacting with a complex digital interface. The interface consists of numerous overlapping circles and lines, all glowing with a bright blue light. The circles are of varying sizes and are interconnected by thin lines, creating a network-like structure. The hand is positioned in the center, with fingers slightly curled as if touching or navigating the interface. The background is dark, making the glowing elements stand out prominently.

Simulan tacto humano con tecnología